OBITUARY.

Died, in Columbia on the 14th instant, after a lingering illness, Mrs. CATHERINE FITZSIMONS, relict of the late Christopher Fitzsimons, Senr., of Charleston. It pleased the Almighty, who had adorned this excellent lady with every virtue which belongs to the female, and the christian character, so to chequer her path, as to make her one of the rarest instances of human perfection in the common walks of life. Blessed with all the advantages of wealth, she never ceased to the latest period, in the humblest most unostentatious spirit to devote her fortune and herself to the comfort of every living object within her circle. Leaving behind her but one of sixteen children she bore, (afflictions) which to a heart like hers, were uncommonly severe, with the firmness and resignation worthy of a follower of Him who suffered voluntarily upon the Cross. Length of days were given her to prolong a bright example, and when at length she was taken to that rich inheritance above, which was the only thing she ever coveted; every one who knew her felt that they had lost a friend—many, one that can never be replaced.
